

Tracey Nash-Huntley

Tracey Nash-Huntley is a Dallas community volunteer. She received her B.S. in Industrial Engineering from the Georgia Institute of Technology after spending her first two collegiate years at Southern Methodist University. Her career path led to fashion and a 15+ year modeling career with Wilhelmina Models, Inc. in New York City and the Kim Dawson Agency in Dallas after which she held the position of Volunteer Coordinator for the Battered Women's Shelter, San Antonio, as well as PR and Special Events Director, Saks Fifth Avenue, San Antonio.

She currently serves on the Board of Goodwill Industries, Dallas and the Advisory Board of SMU's Cary M. Maguire

Center for Ethics and Public Responsibility. Tracey is a member of the Dallas Chapter of The Links, Incorporated and is passionate about creating a pipeline to STEM education and careers for underrepresented girls through her work with their Dallas Links STEAM Academy for 7th – 12th grade girls of color.

Tracey is a founding member of The Village Giving Circle at Texas Women's Foundation, a philanthropic group launched in 2017 by nine dynamic African American women to honor, sustain and expand the legacy of African American women's philanthropy by investing in organizations and programming that positively affect the African American community. She is also a Junior League of Dallas Sustainer, a Life Member of the Jesuit Women's Auxiliary, and a member of The Girl Friends, Incorporated, Dallas Chapter.

Tracey and her husband David have two adult sons, Cal and Porter.
